

Mid Project Team Evaluation

by. Romulo Manzano

Final project is gaining traction. In my opinion we spent a little bit too much time defining exactly what the treatments were going to be - e.g. we debated whether income/professional details were appropriate and whether a middle-eastern name with religious connotations was appropriate given it would carry with it mixed demographic cues – but finally settled in a reasonable middle ground by using name as a proxy for race (treatment a) and a direct child reference (treatment b) in the email language.

I do want to highlight Ryan's technical contributions to the project as they have been instrumental to the automation of the entire data collection exercise!
